ARREST 42 SACCO PICKETS

Judge Thayer Denies Stay of Execution; Bomb Plot on Governor Fuller Bared

Oh, Joy: Free Air
Germans Can—We Can't
Faith, Blessed Gift
Crazier in Cities

By Arthur Brisbane

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE says that no one has authority to control radio and the air. "The air belongs to the people."

It is a comfort to be told that the people can still control SOMETHING, even if it is only the air.

The German government has decided to run all employment agencies for servants, actors, etc. German theory is that the government will see how much it can do for the WORKERS, instead of trying to see how much it can get OUT of them. Private agencies, of course, object violently.

In this country we take the other view, that government cannot do much of ANYTHING without spend money collected from the people, and that everything possible should be left in private hands.

Not all college presidents deny the truths of revealed religion. Dr. Hamlin, late professor of architectural history at Columbia, begins his last will and testament:

"I bequest my body to the elements, and my spirit to Him who gave it, in the confident hope of salvation and eternal life through the perfect righteousness of Jesus Christ."

Happy he who, strong in faith, believes that his individual soul, one among thousands of billions rising from this planet, which who is one among thousands of millions of planets, will be welcome, worthy of special attention, when it arrives at its destination.

Different men and countries have different troubles. Prosperous citizens are worrying because India, which ordinarily collects and hoards silver, threatens to continue selling millions of pieces of silver. The mere suggestion caused a big drop in silver's value not long ago and worse sales overture.

That being the case, government will take notice and HELP it if it can.

Wheat drops every little while and farmers worry, but everybody is used to that.

In cities people go crazy more frequently than they once did. Excitement, bottling liquor and other things help. In New York State one person in every twenty-five has been in the insane asylum, according to the American Psychiatric Association.

There is less insanity than for

APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT IS PREPARED BY ATTORNEYS FOR SACCO

Judge Webster Thayer today denied the Sacco-Vanzetti motions for a stay of execution and revocation of the death sentence. Unless some authority intervenes, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, together with Celestino Madeiros, will be put to death shortly after midnight tomorrow night.

Defense attorneys announced, immediately upon receiving Judge Thayer's decision, that they would appeal to the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Following this announcement, Attorney Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel, went to Suffolk County courthouse and filed an appeal from Supreme Court Justice Sanderson's ruling of yesterday, refusing to issue a writ of error.

Hill also requested Governor Fuller to hear him in person on his plea for a stay of execution pending the outcome of court actions and the Governor received him at his office. Attorney General Reading was called in to join them in conference.

PLOT TO BOMB FULLER; 2 SUSPECTS ARE HELD

A plot to bomb Governor Fuller and the starting of a reign of dynamite terror was frustrated today when two men were arrested on suspicion and raids were made on two radical camps within a fifty-mile radius of Boston for bombs and other explosives.

The arrests were those of a Dochester and a Winthrop man, who were taken into custody by the police of the Lagrange street station.

Both men, in addition to being grilled by the Boston officers, were taken to the Boston Police House for further questioning.

The crisis in the Sacco case will not find the police department unprepared. Every member of the department is available for instant duty if there should be an outbreak of anarchists, and enough ammunition is being laid in to supply the force indefinitely.

POLICE RAID CROWD AT STATE HOUSE

Forty-two Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers were arrested in front of the State House late this afternoon, when city police charged a line of picketers who refused to give up their picketing when ordered to do so by Captain McDevitt of the Joy Street Station.

For almost an hour the pickets were permitted by the police to march up and down front of the State House bearing placards that were more or less inflammatory in nature.

As crowds gathered on the opposite side of Beacon street and threatened to become a menace, Captain McDevitt approached the leaders and ordered them to disperse.

Alfred Baker Lewis, radical leader from New York was near the head of the procession. Harry Cantor, arrested in Sunday's disorder on the Common, was with him.

"You've been here long enough. Get out of this, but go peacefully," the captain ordered.

Then he drew his watch from his pocket. The pickets, disregarding the order, continued their march up and down the sidewalk.

Seven minutes elapsed. Then Captain McDevitt approached the head of the line and at the same time gave a signal with his hand.

As if by magic, half a hundred policemen sprang from the crowd of spectators and charged the line of picketing. Captain McDevitt himself arrested Lewis and Cantor.

As the men and women along the picket line realized they faced arrest and imprisonment, they fought to escape. There was a policeman at the elbow of every other picketer.

The police worked quickly but methodically. No officer drew a weapon, but there was much confusion as they fought with picketers. Please Turn to Page 2, Column 2.

of placards being torn into the pieces. The headquarters of the strikers are warned.

Sgt. McMillan, with Officers C. Chubb, A. J. McDevitt and Phillips, arrived at the room where the meeting was taking place behind closed doors, just after Samuel Wiseman, acting chairman had completed a speech urging his hearers to take decisive action.

After first expelling the door the officers walked in and began "posting" various men in the crowd for weapons. They went to a side room, where a number of the strikers, similar to those carried in Sunday's demonstration on the Common, were found.

The sergeant copied all the instructions and then warned the strikers against taking them on the streets or trying to instill their own. When Joseph Korsin, who denied all knowledge of how the placards were used, was found.

The handful of men and women began to show excitement, moving around and chattering hysterically. Wiseman ordered them to be quiet, and the police left, taking with them a copy of a circular entitled "The Last Call."

It is understood orders have been issued for the arrest of any persons caught distributing this circular.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers met at their headquarters, No. 11 Beach street, where they were addressed by Lazarus Markowitz, who stated that they were not to parade and told them they might stay around headquarters or go home. The majority went home.

At No. 92A, Levee street, Local 26 of the Upholsterers' Union held a meeting with more than 200 present. President Henry Cooper presided.

Harry Carter, arrested Sunday at the Boston Common demonstration, criticized the police for interference at that time, and attacked the American Federation of Labor, and the State Branch, A. F. of L., had stood side by side and refused to take action in the strike of sympathy.

STRONG POLICE GUARD.

Carl Appel, officer in resolution which was adopted, calling on Governor Fuller for a stay of execution to permit further legal action. There were many young women in the gathering. Mary Donovan of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, made a whirlwind tour of the meetings, speaking briefly at each.

Strong details of police officers, under six sergeants, kept the strikers from meeting at all times. The picketing was allowed. No disorders were reported, but on Saturday night a narrowly averted on Hayward Place when a girl worker resisted an officer's command to move on. Her father came to her aid, and the officer was sent away.

MEET IN UNION ROOMS.

The first to go out were 2,000 members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, who left their place of employment at 11 a. m., and proceeded to their union headquarters at No. 11 Beach street. At noon they were followed by 3,000 more.

In each instance officials of the union pointed out that the strike was voluntary, but was ordered by the union. In other words, the workers were not called out by the unions, but went out as individual acts of protest.

A meeting of needy workers of various unions was held at No. 25 Beach street, at which no arrests were made by Vincent Vanzetti, and he is an advocate of the Italian

Wires Legion Head That Sacco Case Excites Paris

Paris, Aug. 9 (A.P.)—Soviet man Elder, chairman of the French committee of the American Legion, who is here arranging for the legion convention in September, last night sent to Howard P. Savage of Chicago, national commander of the American Legion, the following message:

"Questioned on my arrival in France on Sacco and Vanzetti, I stated that I had no authority to give an opinion in the name of the American Legion. However, I feel that it is advisable to inform you of the great emotion raised among the population of Paris who hope that a higher authority may intervene with rapidity to any part of the city.

Twenty-five special officers were held in reserve at the Legation street, while scores of others, under six sergeants, were on duty in the heart of the garment manufacturing district.

Groups of armed garment workers had gathered on Essex street, Hayward place and Beach street early today. Police officers, stationed at every corner, under six sergeants, kept the throng moving, and when the garment manufacturing industry opened up the workers disappeared from the streets.

In order to provide for any trouble at noon, the hour at which the strike was to begin, Captain Goodwin of Division 4 had an extra detail of twenty-five officers in reserve at the station in addition to the regular men who are doing practically twenty-four-hour duty.

The call for a special drill of the police force, which called on members of the Workers' Party of China to assemble at the shipyard, Mayor John J. Whelan requested Chief of Police Finn to see that order was maintained.

Twenty-five plainclothes officers were sent to the building, but there were no strikers there. Jacob Galsion, manager of the building, said he had received no orders to open the two halls.

POLICE READY FOR ACTION.

The shotgun squad, consisting of 48 men, was assembled at headquarters by Captain Louis Laiz, department drillmaster, acting under orders from Sgt. Michael H. Crowley.

A fleet of automobiles was parked behind the headquarters building, in which the trained officers with riot weapons can be transported with rapidity to any part of the city.

COLUMBIA ALL SET FOR START

Paris, Aug. 9 (A.P.)—The gasoline tanks on the monoplane Columbia, which already has received the distinction of flying from New York to Germany, were filled to the limit today and the plane was all set to start on a return flight to New York whenever the weather man says so.

"Everything is ready except the cold chicken, a few sandwiches, black coffee and a bottle of brandy for the emergency," said Maurice Drouhin, French aviator, who will pilot the ship with Charles A. Levine as a passenger.

The Columbia was taken from the hangar, where it had been overhauled, and placed in another hangar, where there is insurance protection.

Drouhin was so convinced of the ship's readiness for the flight that he permitted the extra motor, propeller and spare parts to be taken away from Le Bourget flying field. Levine sent for the plane's rubber bag to test it on Esplanade des Invalides.

The weather this afternoon was unpropitious for a flight.

COLLIDGE O.K.'S BUILDING 8 BIG CRUISERS AT ONCE

PRESIDENT AND NAVY'S HEAD CONFER

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 9 (A.P.)—The shipbuilding program authorized by the General Board of the Navy Department, which was described today at the Summer White House as "immediate," has been approved by President Coolidge after a conference here with Secretary Wilson. Moreover, full speed ahead has been ordered on construction of eight additional cruisers authorized by Congress as a result of the failure of the Geneva Naval Arms Conference. It has been decided these ships should be put on the seas within three years.

While looks for two of the eight cruisers had been laid, only plans have been developed for the other six. Congress overruled President Coolidge last Winter in appropriating funds for three of these vessels on which work had not been started. These three along with the other five will be put into commission as soon as possible.

After his conference today Secretary Wilson also announced that all plans for construction of the great lighter-hamper ship authorized by Congress would be held up pending approval by Congress of the proposed contract for this ship.

2 CAR OWNERS WIN FIGHT ON INSURANCE

The State board of appeal granted under the compulsory liability insurance law today refused to sustain two insurance companies in their cancellations of policies, after a hearing at the State House.

The Globe Indemnity Company cancelled the policy of Edmund E. P. DeSautels of Hudson on the ground DeSautels' car was of the vintage of 1920, that it was not satisfied of his ownership, that he had no visible business and only paid $5 on the premium, and lost his license in 1923.

On July 31 DeSautels collided with a car and did not report the accident because his policy had been cancelled.

The board ruled the company did not have sufficient grounds for its action.

The cancellation by the Travelers' Insurance Company of the policy of P. Edward Carrigan of Lynn was found to be not reasonable, being based on misdemeanor convictions three years ago or more.

FIAT SACCO PLEA TO HIS COURT AS THAYER STAYS

WILL ASK FULLER TO HALT DEATH FOR LAST FIGHT

After every recourse in the State courts is exhausted, Atty. Hill announced, he intends to go into the United States courts to save Sacco and Vanzetti, if possible.

"I will do this even if the government refuses to grant a respite," said Atty. Hill. "I will wage this fight as long as the defendants are alive."

The appeal from the decision of Judge Hand is based on the evidence taken after the Supreme Court judge made his ruling.

FIAT AVELLA.
The defense asks that the full bench of the Supreme Court pass on these exceptions. Before they can go up to the full bench, Judge Sacco must hear them, and then he is expected to do tomorrow morning.

In order to appeal from the ruling of Judge Thayer, exceptions must be filed in Superior Court Superior Court at Dedham and Attorney Hill filed in Superior Court at Dedham. Judge Thayer's decision was made on the basis of the evidence taken after the Supreme Court judge made his ruling.

BASED ON CONSTITUTION.
Clark John P. Cronin of the Supreme Court, after receiving the appeal of Atty. Hill, explained that this did not stay the execution. That matter, he said, was entirely up to the other executives of the Commonwealth, Governor Fuller.

The defense, in its appeal, alleged that the death sentence was in violation of the rights of Sacco and Vanzetti under the constitution of the United States.

Judge Thayer reached his decision today and wrote his ruling in his closely-guarded residence at Worcester and dispatched the written statement to the Dedham Court. Deputy Sheriff Edward Caldwell, who is expected to write a complete explanatory opinion later.

While the deputy sheriff was en route from Worcester to Dedham by automobile, Judge Thayer telephoned the substance of his ruling to Clerk William Everett of the court at Dedham.

The Dedham courthouse was crowded today, but not with the usual number of cases on yesterday. When the white-haired jurist, who has played so prominent a part in the world-famous case, was present in person.

Managers were ready to make every effort to see that the machine was used, and the use of the machine was being instructed in the Police Court called newspapermen to their offices.

Atty. Hill had transferred his headquarters to the State House, and he was there only a few minutes when he found himself followed by the other executives of the Commonwealth, Governor Fuller.

A. F. L. DIRECTS APPEAL TO FULLER

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 9 (A.P.)—Speaking for his organization, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has appealed to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts for commutation of the death sentences of Sacco and Vanzetti.

In a telegram dispatched, Mr. Green asserted that in spite of this investigation, findings and decision of the Governor and his commission, many people still entertained "grave doubts regarding their guilt or innocence."

Mr. Green's telegram said: "Notwithstanding the thorough investigation which you and the commission you appointed made of the record of the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti, your examination of all facts at your disposal has convinced you that these men had a fair trial and were very much more than just innocent victims of a conspiracy of silence."

"The long period of time intervening between the commission's report and the final decision of the court has contributed in a large way to this widespread state of public mind."

"Taking these facts into account, as well as the mental and physical anguish which Sacco and Vanzetti have undergone since their arrest last seven years, I appeal to you for commutation of sentence."

"I have the appeal for the executive of executive clemency upon the broad ground of humanity and social expediency and in behalf of the millions of men and women affiliated with the American Federation of Labor."

EXECUTIONER IS IN HIDING HERE; KIN GUARDED

Somewhere about Boston, a man of 50, with deep-set dark eyes, is in hiding, while the home of his wife and children in Queens, New York, has been turned into a house of terror to which his wife and children come while armed guards save to and fro.

The man is official executioner for Sing Sing and it is his task that will send Sacco, Vanzetti and Madeline into eternity, a few minutes after midnight, tomorrow night, unless there is some unlooked for intervention.

He has disappeared from his home in Queens, New York, "in a sudden" to an electrical contract in the neighborhood," is the word that comes from the terror-stricken wife.

But those on the "inside" know that he is already in or near Boston awaiting the time for him to send the three men to death.

The executioner will receive $200 for the few minutes of work he will perform in the death house at the Charlestown State Prison. He is to be paid at the rate of $150 for each electrocution, the price being the same in all four States where the man officiates at the deaths ordered by the courts.

FORD OPPOSES DEATH PENALTY

Detroit, Aug. 9 (A.P.)—Regardless of the fairness or the unfairness of the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti, they should not be executed, Henry Ford said today in reiterating his disbelief in capital punishment.

"I do not know much about the court record of the case," Ford said.

"If there is any doubt about the fairness of their trial, they should be given a new trial, but in any event they should not be killed. We cannot approve the State's doing what we would not do ourselves. Killing of human beings is always an act of vengeance. I can't see it any other way. I don't believe in it."

The Sacco and Vanzetti sentence could be revoked without the verdict of guilty being annulled and this would give opportunity to work the evidence that may appear in the men's favor. Provided the man is guilty, imprisonment, protects society. If he is not, it gives time a chance to turn up new evidence and right a great wrong."

3 Routes to Rome Are Considered by 'Old Glory' Pilots

By J. D. HILL and LLOYD BERTAUD
Pilot of 'Old Glory' on the New York-Rome Flight

On our proposed flight to Rome in the monoplane "Old Glory," we have considered three possible routes. The great circle course being the shortest, we would naturally consider it first. The distance of the great circle course, New York to Rome, is 4,230 miles approximately.

It has many advantages, among which is the fact that on the western end about 1,100 miles can be flown over, or in sight of, land. The water route is roughly 2,500 miles, with something like 600 miles of the coast of France to be flown. The distance from France to Rome, as first thought that appears to be the logical route to follow, but weather conditions must also be studied very carefully. It is true that during the month of August the sea is practically removed from this route, and the fogs which usually hang about Newfoundland are not so great as in other seasons of the year. Also, the steamship lanes at this time move far to the east.

It is a pretty good plan for airplane men to keep a close watch on the low steamship lanes, even the best of modern airplanes also are floating around in the ocean in a blind state, and not a very pleasant prospect.

On account of this we have considered modifications of the Great Circle course, one of which is to go direct from New York to St. John, Newfoundland, then to a course a little south of east direct from Newfoundland to the coast of France at Bordeaux.

ADVISEABLE COURSE
This seems like a very advisable course to follow during the month of August. The distance would be little greater than the Great Circle route, but it has the advantage of a considerable amount of land flying together with close contact with the transatlantic steamships. The distance is approximately 4,200 miles.

The third course which we have considered would have a short, larger over-water flight, this distance being something like 2,100 miles. From New York we would follow the shipshape lanes to a point roughly 500 miles west of Newfoundland and there start a Great Circle course to Rome, which would also hit the coast of France near Bordeaux.

In the early or late summer this would appear to be an advisable course, being south of the fog area of the Grand Banks and fairly close to the steamship lanes, but since we are fortunate in starting in the month of August, the prevailing weather conditions will probably permit of our taking the more northerly, and the shorter, route.

TWO NIGHTS IN AIR
Of the three courses mentioned we prefer the second, that is, from New York to St. John, St. John to Bordeaux, then across France to Rome. This route is the most direct north of the Pyrenees Mountains, and then passing south of the Alps into Italy.

Wishing to arrive at our destination in daylight, we have thought of leaving New York in the late afternoon or evening. This will give us two nights and the greater part of one day on the trip and our arrival at Rome will probably be in the afternoon.

Flying up the coast toward Newfoundland we will have the lighthouses and radio stations for guides and will probably be able to take a landfall at daybreak about St. John; then, after flying through the day and ascending at night, we expect to arrive at the coast of France at about daybreak.

OFFER ASSISTANCE
For approximately a week before our flight we will collect weather information, beginning in our Western States and extending across the ocean into Europe. The Weather Department has given us information; the Air Mail Service, we know, will gladly give us information; the steamship companies and radio corporations have answered us of their cooperation in collecting weather data from steamships at sea and we expect to get some assistance from European stations.

WILL FLY LOW
For the return trip in a direction against the prevailing wind, which is West, weather information will help us to select a date on which the handiwork of the weather flight is at a minimum. This flight will probably be made at very low altitude, and if it is like the west-bound mail flying, a great deal of it may be a very few feet above the surface of the water.

Our return flight will probably be made from a field in the west of England near Bristol, where our Jupiter engine is manufactured. There are two advantages to this arrangement, the one being the comparatively short distance from England to Newfoundland; the other is the expert assistance which we will receive from the British engine makers and others in the British services.

We know the British will give us every assistance, for this is more or less an international affair in any way. The flight has been made possible by the expert assistance which we are going to Italy, and possibly even to the Mediterranean countries. In a Dutch aerodrome, which has been introduced and is now manufactured in America and is powered by an English motor.

From the Mediterranean country we will fly to England and then back to the States—at last, we hope to do all of these things.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Mrs. Frederick S. Blodgett's Collection of New England Antiques on Exhibition at Salmon Falls (N.H.) Home

PRESERVING AND RESTORING NEW ENGLAND'S antiquities is becoming an absorbing pastime. And it's a pastime that, of necessity, indicates in its followers the possession of a full purse, infinite leisure and an abiding love and understanding of "Early American." Cards coming down from New Hampshire to friends of Mrs. Frederick S. Blodgett indicate that the labor of love in which she has long been interested is completed, and that the old Westworth mansion in Salmon Falls is restored and open to all who would behold, as a treasure trove of 16th century beauties.

THE LUNCHEON ANNOUNCED A PRIVATE OPENING of the mansion and the Coach House Residence to meet Mrs. Arthur T. Walker. Antiquarians will adore the mansion, built in 1701, and as sturdy and handsome today as when Colonel Paul Westworth took his bride there, back in 1704. The enormously wide boards, deep central chimneys, graceful curving balustrades, architectural features of the times when the forefathers built for endurance as well as simply beauty, all give importance to this fine mansion set on a commanding New Hampshire hillside. The mansion and Coach House are open until September 6.

THEY SAY DOWN ALONG THE NORTH SHORE that "everyone" is going over to Mrs. Blodgett for the International Polo. Right in the vanguard of this "everyone" exodus will be that prince of sportsmen, Q. A. Shaw McKee, master of polo at Myopia this season. Meanwhile, until the all-important dates in September (September 5, 16 and 14) arrive polo between Princeton and Myopia goes merrily, if informally, on, to the detestation of local polo fans.

THERE'S NO SET PRE-ARRANGEMENT. THE men who turn up at the appointed place and time, three days a week, are the ones to chase the white ball up and down the greenward, either at Myopia or Princeton. Although Frederick Blodgett, Sr., has already departed for France and his establishment at Pau, France, Jr., lingers here. So he frequents the polo ground, and his presence is a treat to all veterans, these men who come out, and furnish many an exciting moment for the gallery.

THE LUNCHEON MR. AND MRS. HUGH BANCROFT give at "Deer Hill" is one of the big features of the Horse Show Day at Cohasset. The show goes on, from early morning until early evening of August 19, at the show ring on the Bancroft estate. During the noon interlude guests move up the hill a way to enjoy luncheon at the Bancrofts' handsome summer home, a glorified "farm house" in the Colonial manner set high over pretty little Cohasset and commanding a view of almost the entire town.

LAST "CAR'S SHOW AT COHASSET WAS for a beginner—a record breaker. The same large outpouring of exhibitors and spectators is expected this season; firstly, because it is a good show, and secondly, because the benefit is two-fold, to the Sunlight Repair shop and the Legion Post, equally. Mr. and Mrs. William Gagnon, with their stable full of splendid mounts, take a first-hand interest in the show. Likewise Miss Jessie Bancroft, last year the weatherman sent along a perfect day, and this year powers that be look for a repetition of the kind, that the sport and the financial results be to the point.

be in the Newport social swirl for some two weeks. As house guest of the James Denison Sayers at "The Ledges" Miss Wolcott will be right in the very center of doings as Newport's smartest young set arranges them. At the Casino of a morning for tennis her frock was simple and smart, of silk and plaited, something like the that of the maple leaf when it first takes on its Autumn blaze of yellow. Wolcott, pure at mere, are at Nahant again this summer, and yesterday, as all good yachtsmen should do, went over to Marblehead for Race Week opening.

AFTER THE OPERA COMPANY AT STILLINGTON had done "Fiasco" with brilliance, the Sunday Interlude without rehearsal brought a pleasant occasion to their honor, the J. Henry Laurence luncheon at Gratonwood. The Laurences have been continuous attendants at the Billington affairs, and with other of the Shore folk are vastly delighted that Opera Intime as Vladimir Rosing's troupe presents it is an enormous success.

HUB MAIL PLANE FORCED DOWN

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 8 (A.P.)—Dean Smith, pilot on the Chicago-New York Air Mail route, today told of passing through almost continuous electrical storms between Cleveland and Hialeah Field here. Smith arrived only an hour late.

The storm areas were separated by only short spaces of clear weather and the last ten miles were the worst, he said.

The mail plane from Boston was forced down last night at South-bridge Field, according to word received here.

The Cleveland mail did not go out last night because of the severity of the storm. Pilot Webster hopped off with the mail early this morning.

IRISH SAFETY BILL WINS IN THE SENATE

Dublin, Aug. 8 (A.P.)—The new public safety bill, framed after the assassination of Vice-President Kevin O'Higgins, passed through its second reading in the Irish Free State Senate today by a vote of 41 to 7.

The bill, which calls for the death penalty for illegally carrying arms, has already been adopted by the Dail.

Opposition to the measure was led today by Colonel Moore, formerly commander of the Constabulary and a brother of the novelist, George Moore. He will enter the committee stage tomorrow.

Where Emily

Story of a Girl Who Did
Just What She Chose
and Then Took Flight

"Gentlemen prefer to be blonde!" Whereupon Rodney jumped up and went over to her.

Emily Duane, an "ultra modern," is about to marry Rodney Bayre, son of an old New England family, a conservative, family, parentless, is extremely wealthy, charming, high-spirited and impulsive. What she wants, she wants—and gets. Novelty allures her and her latest fad is the Hindu cult, with Swami Lal Singh as teacher.

The wedding is two days away and Burton Lamb, Bayre's chum and best-man-to-be, Neil Harding and Betty Bailey, bridesmaids, and Pete Gibby, Betty's beau, are discussing the plans with Emily and her Aunt Judy. The Reverend Mr. Gurner, who is to officiate, and "Spinks," the wedding director, have gone by the board, and the company is getting ready for a rehearsal of the wedding when Polly Pennington and her husband, Jim, arrive.

Jim is explaining to Betty Bailey that he does write "those plays."

CHAPTER II

EMILY had known and loved Rodney Bayre more than a year, but had refused to give up her freedom until this season, when the quiet took his breath away for proposing an immediate wedding.

Sayre, a worthwhile chap, had a slight tinge of reserve and decorum left over from some old New England ancestor, and he was really the very one for Emily to marry, for he truly loved her and he had great tact and discretion in managing her.

CHIEF LEADING EAGLE ALL DOLLED UP
This is Mr. Wamie-To-Ka-Ha himself. You doubtless recognize the countenance as that of President Calvin Coolidge of New England. But do not be fooled. Ask any Sioux in South Dakota and you'll learn the photo is of Chief Wamie, etc.—meaning Chief Leading Eagle. The new war bonnet is not in any ring, either.

ASKS HER TO SIT IN HIS PLACE

Bashful Flier Starts Cossip
of Romance as He Shows
Ship to Pretty Maid

Cincinnati, Aug. 9 (I.N.S.)—The wagging of tongues which starts every time the Prince of Wales invites a young woman to dance or ride on his yacht was but a dim echo today compared with the gossip started by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, bashful transatlantic flying hero, in the wake of his invitation to a pretty girl to sit in the cockpit of the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The honored guest, who sat in the cockpit seat of the famous monoplane, was introduced to Lindbergh at Lanken Airport just prior to his start over the "open door" rule. Lindbergh surprised even his closest associates when he invited her to inspect the controls of his ship from the pilot's place.

Lindbergh's take-off was slightly delayed when it was discovered a security hunter had whittled a four-foot square section from the stainer of the Spirit of St. Louis. Repairs were made quickly.

LYNN "OPEN DOOR" POLICY

Washington, Aug. 9 (I.N.S.)—Back to the scene of his greatest triumph was borne today the body of Major-General Leonard Wood, for a final resting place in Arlington National Cemetery among the nation's war dead.

It was in Washington that Wood, once a cheery surgeon in the army, rose to chief of staff, the highest post in the military establishment.

The funeral which honored his forty-two years' service as soldier and soldier administrator was one of the most impressive military ceremonies held in recent years.

General Wood's body arrived at 12 o'clock this morning from Boston. Upon its arrival the general's body, borne by a caisson, was carried slowly behind two ranks of soldiers in the station, there to be taken to the funeral home.

Behind the flag-draped caisson, a band played "The American Song" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" backwards—the traditional custom of military mourning—moved in the slow cortège.

Mr. Wood, her two sons, Osborne Wood and Leonard Wood, Jr., and her daughter, Miss Louise B. Wood, followed by a short time by the casket in the President's room. After the funeral Mrs. Wood plans to go to Baltimore for a rest.

Constant notes in cities are said to be causing a spread of "Malapropisms," the disease which causes people to think one thing and say another.

For instance, the boys had made plans when he says "it's how much money you make in the physical year that counts."

In fact, malapropisms has reached alarming proportions.

Perhaps something could be done by getting out of the city.

After all, malapropisms is very common among married people. They think one thing and say another.

Married couples from malapropisms. One says her old friend's cousin must need to be married to an individual in the Navy.

Well Confide After Them When It Takes All Summer

Doctor Blackman has worked out an economical substitute for a fishing trip. His suggestion is: "Take an egg and hen and hang in front of electric fan. Turn on juice. I never fish and recline."

Adam Scofield's Journal

Up and this days resolved to cover our plans with insurance, and so with dance, to see Mister Hamilton, the hotelier, and all while he, with pointer, show us the patterns, one after the other, and make a brave sermon on insolence, telling how to judge a catchment line from a genuine insolence by the frown, and we soon were in pretty a pattern as ever I see, which, when converted in one relation, will make the planing look like unto marble. What the keys will look like, the time, and to watch the planing all we need to be to turn on the hose, for which Heaven be praised.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

By JOHN F. MEDBURY

His holiday business is so slow lately that hundreds of burglars are making good money teaching married men how to sneak in the house at night.

Any husband can manage to slip out in the evening. The hard part is to get back in again.

One man paid $500 for lessons and then his wife got in on him.

He tried to overcome this handicap by putting chloroform in her smelling salts.

He thought he'd be able to fool her by tip-toeing in his stocking feet, but she could see his nostrils and hear his arches falling.

He made a noise in the room one night and she thought it was the dog. When she said, "Is that you, Towser?" he crawled over to the bed and bit her hand.

He had to sit there for an hour while she stroked his head.

If sort of hurt his pride to be taken for an Airhead.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

It is a bathing-suit or his pajamas; but he never actually FEELS dirty until he finds himself all doctored out and covered up in his evening clothes.

A man never knows how many women he can love in a Summer until he starts to clean out his closet, and comes across a lot of soiled and faded, vaguely familiar photographs and unrecognizable acquaintances.

A woman may forgive and forget, but she'll never let the MAN forget that she's a woman.

Correct Manners

Seating Wedding Guests.

DEAR MRS. BRICKMAN:

(1) I am going to be a bride. It is proper to wear a train with a veil, or are they out of date now?

(2) On who table do the bride's parents and groom's people sit?

(3) I am having a maid of honor, two bridesmaids, best man, two ushers and a flower girl. PERFECTLY.

USUALLY there is a train, which is the background for the veil.

(4) The left side of the church is the bride's side, because the parents of the bride are the hosts of the occasion. The parents of the groom, his relatives and friends are given the right side of the church, for the right side is the guest of honor's side, and the parents of the groom are the guests of honor of a wedding.

(5) First, the two ushers, walking together. Next the maid of honor, walking together. Then the two bridesmaids, walking together. Then the bride, walking alone. Last, you, the best man, wait at the front of the church.
